

Purple-faced leaf monkey

The purple-faced leaf monkey is Sri Lanka's largest primate. They are herbivores and like to eat leaves, fruit, and occasionally flowers. A male purple-faced leaf monkey lives with lots of females. They spend almost all of their time high up in trees, eating or sleeping. Unfortunately, the purple-faced leaf monkey is Endangered. Their rainforest home is being cut down for logging and for farming. They are hunted for their meat and for their skins which are used to make drums.
